

Please consider this request to make Sinclair Broadcasting think twice about wielding their media power to affect an election. "Stolen Honor" is not news, as they claim. There's a big difference between ordering affiliates to show a partisan film and offering it in a movie theatre or on DVD, as the partisan film "Fahrenheit 9/11" is being distributed. Putting on TV, for free, puts the story right into people's living rooms when they turn on their TV's, expecting the usual broadcasting offerings.

Sinclair Broadcasting's decision to force their stations to air an anti-Kerry documentary days before the election is a clear example of the dangers of media consolidation.

Sinclair uses the public airwaves free of charge, and is obligated by law to serve the public interest. But when large companies control the airwaves, we get more of what's good for the bottom line and less of what we need for our democracy. Instead of something produced at "News Central" far away, it's more important that we see real people from our own communities and more substantive news about issues that matter.

Sinclair's actions show why we need to strengthen media ownership rules, not weaken them. They show why the license renewal process needs to involve more than a returned postcard. Thank you.
